Aleph, an emerging leading player in the digital printing industry, has been honoured with the Future Textile Award. A new recognition for Aleph and the LaForte integrated system has come from WTiN, one of the industry European leading networks, for the second time in 2 years. The awarding ceremony took place in Amsterdam during an international conference.

The Future Textile Award intends to underline successes and remarkable breakthrough in textile industry and celebrate intuitions of companies operating at international level.

The protagonist of this year award is the LaForte 200 Paper, super-wide format 340cm with sublimation inks that was presented at SGIA Expo recently, Aleph said in a press release. The printer gained the approval of the jury and was rewarded with Best Innovation Home Textiles Award 2018.

With this important achievement in home textiles, Aleph is also looking forward to being in Frankfurt for Heimtextil 2019. (RR)
